GO riders paying up for parking squeeze

GO Transit issues 12,996 tickets — worth $522,920 — twice as many as the year before

Alexandre Payette couldn't believe his eyes when he returned to the Bramalea GO station one evening in September to find a $25 parking ticket flapping under his wiper blade.

"Since there were no more parking spots left, I made myself one; I parked alongside a row of parked vehicles. I always saw vehicles parked this way, so I thought it was tolerated," said Payette, 22.

Commuters who can't find a spot are a key reason GO doubled the parking fines it issued last year, according to data obtained by the Toronto Star.

As GO's ridership grows — it's expected to hit 61 million this year and increase about 25 per cent in the next five years — so does the demand for its vast parking lots.

Transit officials admit they can't keep pace even though the system has added 20,000 parking spaces over the past eight years and is now building about 3,500 new spots a year. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Hundreds of charges in chop-shop bust

In some cases, unsuspecting drivers were operating fused vehicles with no air bags and weak welding, according to investigators

▶ Det. Const. Jason Hodkin shows one of the cars allegedly fused together from stolen and wrecked vehicles and re-sold to unsuspecting drivers by five Toronto suspects. Hodkin holds a picture of a wrecked car's back half that led police to this vehicle.

Police say a car-scam investigation dubbed "Project Enterprise" has resulted in more than 500 charges against five Toronto men.

Unsafe vehicles were allegedly being patched up and sold to unsuspecting purchasers who believed they were safe, according to investigators.

"With all that work, we're not quite sure how the car is going to react in a collision. It's a safety concern," said Det. Const. Jason Hodkin of Toronto police's traffic services division.

The crime ring allegedly operated by buying legitimately trashed cars and then stealing an identical vehicle — usually from the GTA — for its working parts. The fused-together car would receive a fraudulent safety inspection to declare that it was road safe and re-registered, investigators say.

As a result of the investigation, over 100 certified letters have been sent to drivers in Ontario, asking them to come in for a proper safety inspection.

But less than half of those vehicles have actually been pulled off the road, officers say. Police believe some drivers know the allegedly illegal provenance of their car, and others are simply turning a blind eye.

Project Enterprise was a joint investigation between the Toronto Police Service, OPP, Niagara Regional Police and the Ministry of Transportation's enforcement unit.

Charged are:

John Keen of Toronto: 52 counts of fraud and 52 counts of forging documents.

Giovanni Bellisario of Toronto: 125 counts of fraud and 125 counts of forging documents.

Osvaldo Savia of Toronto: 72 counts of fraud and 73 counts of forging documents.

David De Oliveira of Toronto: Property obtained by crime, fraud and two counts of forging documents.

Gabor Toth of Toronto: Seven counts of property obtained by crime and three counts of forging documents.

More charges may be laid in the coming months.

Project origin

- Niagara Regional Police say the investigation stemmed from search warrants executed at Auto Enterprises last June.
- Police say 60 stolen vehicles and 200 high-end vehicles that had been stripped for parts were seized from Auto Enterprise in Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Scarborough Hospital axing 60 nurses

4% On the block are 50 full-time and 10 part-time positions from departments across the board, according to the union. The cuts represent about four per cent of the hospital's 1,500 nursing staff.

The Ontario Nurses' Association is warning that looming job cuts at the Scarborough Hospital will put pressure on an already overworked nursing staff and reduce the quality of care patients receive.

Union officials said the hospital notified them Wednesday that 60 registered nurses will lose their jobs in coming months.

"All the research shows that registered nurses are the backbone of health care," said Andy Summers, regional vice-president of the union. "How can removing registered nurses from care improve quality outcomes?... You can't give cheaper health care and get better outcomes."

In a brief statement, Scarborough Hospital confirmed the layoffs and said the cuts are a cost-saving measure.

"TSH is facing significant budget challenges due to rising costs for drugs, supplies and negotiated wage settlements," spokesman Dave Bourne wrote in an email. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Man charged after body discovered

A Toronto man charged about two weeks after a woman's body was found rolled up in a carpet in a Junction laneway will remain in custody until a bail hearing Tuesday.

Aaron Johnston, 23, was arrested and charged Thursday with performing an indignity to a dead body.

The body of the 31-year-old woman was found Feb.1 by a man walking his dog near Clendenan Avenue and Dundas Street W.

The woman's body was allegedly moved from an apartment, wrapped in a carpet and left in the laneway, police said.

Friends and co-workers identified her as Jennette Hutchison, a waitress at the Black Cat Pub and Grill near Jane and Dundas streets.

Earlier this month, police said they were no longer treating the death as a homicide, but that it was still considered suspicious. Police have not yet revealed the cause of death.

Johnston appeared briefly at Old City Hall court Thursday afternoon.

Woman sought in homicide

Toronto police have released photos of a woman they believe knows who was responsible for a fatal stabbing on New Year's Day.

Police told a news conference Thursday that the woman was with the person who stabbed Mike Pimentel, 24, just before 3 a.m. on Jan. 1. Pimentel died after being taken to hospital.

Investigators are calling the woman a "person of interest" and are hoping either she or someone who recognizes her will contact them.

Police have speculated Pimentel got into a fight at the corner of East Liberty and Hanna streets after being separated from his friends.

The photos are posted on the Toronto police website (torontopolice.on.ca).

ORGAN DONOR CHAMP MAKES IT ON ELLEN

Talk show host Ellen DeGeneres granted would-be lung transplant patient Hélène Campbell's wish Thursday morning by talking about organ donation, but went a step further with a surprise interview via Skype from her set in Los Angeles.

Campbell was so surprised she had to ask her mom to increase her oxygen tank's flow to help her breathe.

The 20-year-old left her Ottawa-area home in January to wait for a double lung transplant, and cannot be more than two hours away from Toronto, where the operation would be performed.

DeGeneres, an organ donor herself, saw Campbell's You Tube video in which she asks the host to talk about organ donation on the show. DeGeneres did just that and a bit more.

The last of the lab monkeys

Students upset after U of T euthanises monkeys used in brain study ◐ Marks end of school's primate research

They worked for seven years having scientists study their brains in a research project deemed so valuable that it won a national award.

In their off-hours, the two young females played with toys, watched TV, ate fruit and hung out together in their home on the University of Toronto campus.

That home was a cage; these were research monkeys — "cynomolgus macaques" bred in Texas for research.

And when they were put to death earlier this month so scientists could analyze their brains, it marked the end of primate research at Canada's largest university.

"They were our very last 'non-human' primates and we have no intention of using any more; technology now lets us get the same information from smaller animals," said Professor Peter Lewis, the U of T's associate vice-president of research.

▶ A crab-eating macaque looks out of a cage in China. Five U of T graduate students in primatology tried to spare two macaques used for research at the university from euthanasia, but found out they were too late.

It was ethical concern that prompted five U of T graduate students in primatology to try to spare the monkeys from death last week and have them sent to a primate sanctuary such as Story Book Farm near Sunderland northeast of Toronto, a sort of retirement home for monkeys.

PhD student Erica Tennenhouse co-wrote a passionate letter to university officials last week asking the two animals be spared and no further primates be used for research.

They learned the animals were already dead; euthanized by lethal overdose of anesthetic for the final stage of the study.

Research

- Of some 50,000 vertebrates used each year for scientific research at the U of T, about 85 per cent are mice and rats, said university veterinarian Dr. George Harapa. The rest are mostly fish, plus a few rabbits.
- The university uses only half as many animals in research as it did in the 1980s, he said.

OPP investigating 'possible criminal activities' at Ornge

- Publicly funded air ambulance service in hot seat over business dealings
- Police also concerned about helicopter deal with AgustaWestland

A criminal probe of Ontario's air ambulance service has provincial police investigating "financial irregularities" at an agency that has been engulfed in controversy for months.

"The OPP is conducting an investigation into possible criminal activities on the part of Ornge air ambulance service," police spokeswoman Cathy Bell said Thursday.

It's the latest blow to Ornge, which receives about $150 million a year from the province to operate a non-profit air medical rescue and transport service. The agency, which set up a series of private for-profit entities, has been under fire for months over questionable business dealings and exorbitant executive salaries.

▶ The OPP are looking at the books.

Health Minister Deb Matthews said she's disappointed the police had to be called in.

"When I see what appears to be an abuse of taxpayer dollars in a health-care system that is under real pressure, when people in this province aren't able to get everything they want when it comes to health care, it is a huge betrayal — a betrayal of trust," Matthews said.

"When I see what appears to be an abuse of taxpayer dollars in a health-care system that is under real pressure ... it is a huge betrayal — a betrayal of trust." HEALTH MINISTER DEB MATTHEWS

One source who spoke on condition of anonymity said there were two red flags that prompted the ministry to call in the police. One concern was $6.7 million paid by helicopter firm AgustaWestland to an Ornge for-profit subsidiary controlled by Chris Mazza, Ornge's founder and former CEO, the source said.

Another red flag was the $1.2 million in loans Ornge reportedly provided to Mazza on top of his generous salary, the source said.

Former child star Neil Hope, who played Derek (Wheels) Wheeler on the TV series Degrassi, died alone in a Hamilton rooming house in 2007, his former fiancée Christina Boulard said Thursday.

Boulard said Hope was a "private person" who sometimes went for years without seeing his family. Family members had been trying to track Hope down after hearing rumours of his death several years ago, but learned the truth only last month from Hamilton police.

Opposition reacts to Drummond report

Now that economist Don Drummond has revealed his austerity plan for Ontario, the opposition parties are offering some advice of their own.

Ontario is in bad fiscal shape, but struggling families should not have to shoulder the burden of eliminating the deficit with user fees and higher water and hydro bills, NDP Leader Andrea Horwath said Thursday.

"I don't know what planet Mr. Drummond's on, he obviously only had one focus, which was the cuts," she said. "But everybody else is living in the real world. Every other Ontarian that I'm talking to is feeling the pain already. They're hurting."

The Liberals instead should stop corporate tax cuts and even raise the rate to 14 per cent to bring in more revenue, she said.

The Tories rejected her call for higher business taxes, but demanded that Finance Minister Dwight Duncan deliver a budget as soon as possible.

"This report is going on a shelf, it's gathering dust. That's why we need a budget now," PC finance critic Peter Shurman said.

Recap

- Drummond's report urged the Liberals to take "unprecedented" action now in order to prevent a debt crisis in the future.
- His prescription includes bigger class sizes, higher utility bills, fewer hospitals and an end to direct subsidies and tax credits for businesses.
- Duncan has said he is not going to implement all 362 recommendations, even though Drummond warned that is what is needed to eliminate the deficit by 2017-18.

Family dog kills baby in Alberta community

Husky had no history of violence An 'unimaginable event': Insp

Police say a newborn baby boy died after a family dog with no previous history of attacks turned on the child inside the family's home.

RCMP said the infant was attacked Wednesday morning at the house in Airdrie, a bedroom community just north of Calgary, and died that night in hospital.

Insp. Tony Hamori said the family also has a 2 1/2-year-old son and has never had any problems with the husky.

"There is no history whatsoever of any issues with this particular dog," Hamori said at a news conference Thursday. "It's just a very tragic accident."

Hamori wouldn't release any details of the attack out of concern for the family. He did say one of the parents was at home with the child at the time.

"We do not feel there's anything criminal in nature. No charges are being considered at this point in time," he said. "I'd like to express my deepest condolences to the family for the loss of their child."

Neighbours identified the two-storey grey house where the attack happened.

It sits on a quiet street in the Kingsland area of the community. There's a park a few doors down.

Someone inside the home angrily turned away media.

Erica Wollen, who lives a few doors down, has two sons of her own. She said the attack made her think about the danger her kids might have been in playing at the park.

A lot of people in the neighbourhood leave their dogs off-leash, she said.

"Its horrible," Wollen said. "I can't even imagine the devastation and for it to be their own animal. It would be just devastating because I am sure they trusted their own dog."

Counselling was being offered to the RCMP officers who attended the scene.

Hamori said the attack re-enforces the need to watch animals closely around young children.

In 2010, a husky killed a three-week-old baby girl as she sat strapped in her car seat on the floor of a home in Quebec.

Her 17-year-old mother was allegedly outside having a cigarette when the dog attacked. She was charged with manslaughter.

- "We want to do the right thing for the family," said Darryl Poburan, manager of municipal enforcement in Airdrie. "We want to do the right thing for the dog. I know it freaks me out. It's not something you like to see."

Stanley Cup rioter sentenced to 17 months in jail

The first person convicted in Vancouver's Stanley Cup riot was sentenced Thursday to 17 months in jail after admitting to joining the mob that left a path of destruction throughout the city's downtown core.

Ryan Dickinson, 20, pleaded guilty to participating in a riot, as well as breaching bail conditions from an unrelated assault charge.

He admitted to using a road barricade and a newspaper box to damage an unmarked police car, and then later tossing a mannequin and a newspaper box at the window of a clothing store several blocks away.

The Crown had asked for as much as 18 months in jail, arguing that everyone who participated that night must be punished for all of the damage the riot caused, regardless of their individual level of involvement.

RICH LAM/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Riot police walk in front of a burning vehicle on June 15, 2011 in Vancouver.

The Crown labelled Dickinson an "instigator," casting him as a violent, angry young man who appeared on video presented in court to be enjoying the violence.

Provincial court judge Malcolm MacLean rejected Dickinson's suggestion that he was merely "caught up in the moment."

"Mr. Dickinson's participation was serious and involved a number of conscious and deliberate decisions on his part, starting with his decision to go downtown knowing it was a breach of his bail," MacLean said.

"The videos (presented in court) show someone with more than a momentary lapse of judgement. ... The video shows there were times that Mr. Dickinson could have walked away, but he did not."

Tories get tough on refugees

▶ Say new bill will make it easier to deal with bogus refugee claims ▶ Critics argue the bill is discriminatory

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Minister of Citizenship and Immigration Jason Kenney speaks on Thursday during Question Period in the House of Commons in Ottawa.

The Conservative government is using its majority to once again overhaul the refugee system to reduce what it considers to be bogus claims.

Immigration Minister Jason Kenney tabled legislation in the House of Commons on Thursday that reverses some key concessions the Tories made to the opposition two years ago in order to pass the Balanced Refugee Reform Act through a minority Parliament.

This new legislation, called the Protecting Canada's Immigration System Act, more closely resembles the original refugee bill as tabled by the Tories, before any concessions.

But Kenney says a glut of refugee claims from the European Union has forced the government to adopt even tougher measures.

"We worked with the opposition in good faith and we ended up with a bill that was a huge improvement over the status quo," he said Thursday.

"But we have a serious problem. We're facing a large wave of unfounded asylum claims coming from the European Union in particular. The only tool we have to address that now is the imposition of a visa. That hurts Canada's commercial, diplomatic interests. It hurts the tourism industry. We need other tools to address it."

Online bill at what cost? ISPs ask

Government says legislation has provisions that would minimize cost to service providers

The government's online surveillance bill — already hitting snags over privacy — is raising concerns among Internet providers about who'll pick up the tab.

The legislation would allow authorities access to Internet subscriber information — including name, address, telephone number and email address — without a warrant.

It would also require telecommunication service providers to have the technical capability to enable police and spies to intercept messages and conversations.

The price tag for carriers could be significant, and it's unclear what kind of compensation will be offered, said Bernard Lord, president of the Canadian Wireless Telecommunications Association.

"These new undertakings could generate significant costs, and the question remains whether the government will compensate those costs," Lord said in an interview.

The association represents companies including Bell Canada, Rogers Communications and Telus, which provide wireless services to millions of Canadians.

"I don't think we should ask law-abiding citizens that are using Internet services or wireless services to pay more on their bills because the government decides that the police needs extra tools to investigate," Lord said.

The bill requires the new interception capabilities to be included only in newly installed equipment.

@Vikileaks30 may have Commons connection

The Twitter stunt that revealed sleazy details about Public Safety Minister Vic Toews' acrimonious divorce proceedings appears to have emanated from the House of Commons.

In a clever, web-savvy investigation, the Ottawa Citizen has traced the Internet Protocol address attached to the Vikileaks30 Twitter account to a Commons computer.

On Thursday, the newspaper sent a website link to the account operator, who uses an encrypted Hushmail email account. Other than the Citizen, only Vikileaks30 had access to the website.

Americans love Canada: Survey

Canada gets loftiest ranking of any foreign country since Gallup started the poll two decades ago

Hey, Canada: Americans like us. They really, really like us. In fact, they like us better than anyone, anywhere on the planet.

Nearly all Americans, a full 96 per cent, have a favourable view of Canada, according to a new Gallup survey.

America's neighbour to the north has long been the darling of the survey.

"Canada's 93 per cent ratings in 1987 and 1989 were the previous high favourable for any country," the pollster said in a release.

This year's love-in comes despite the Obama administration's recent decision to reject Calgary-based TransCanada's Keystone XL pipeline, and amid a spate of lower-profile trade irritants between the two nations. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Other rankings

- Australia, however, also ranks high, right behind us in second place at 93 per cent.
- Great Britain is in third at 90 per cent.
- Iran, meantime, ranks last at 10 per cent. North Korea is in second-last at 13 per cent and Afghanistan rounds out the bottom three at 14 per cent.

Handcuffs put lock on romance

A couple's romantic Valentine's Day tryst unexpectedly wound up as a ménage à trois — the added participant being the local police.

Plans for a naughty night involving handcuffs went awry when the couple realized they'd lost the key. It eventually fell upon the man to make an awkward phone call to law-enforcement authorities, requesting help to free the woman.

Police in south-eastern Quebec received the call Wednesday morning, the day after Valentine's. They believe the woman had been stuck there for hours.

The man had already managed to pry off one of the cuffs. Police used wire-cutters to remove the second one.

"The woman's arm was changing colour. It was turning blue. So it had been a while."

CONST. PAUL TEAR, A SPOKESMAN FOR THE MEMPHREMAGOG MUNICIPAL POLICE FORCE, WHO SAID OFFICERS "DIDN'T ASK" PRECISELY HOW LONG THE WOMAN HAD BEEN STUCK.

Officers say they suggested to the woman that she go to hospital to get her arm checked out, but aren't sure whether she followed up on their advice.

Because the man had been free to move, and the woman also had one arm freed, they managed to get themselves dressed before police officers arrived.

The couple are in their 40s. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Diplomats targeted in bomb plot: Thai police

In wake of incidents, Israel's foreign ministry says security has been stepped up for diplomatic staff abroad

Three Iranians detained after accidentally setting off explosives in Bangkok were planning to attack Israeli diplomats, Thailand's top policeman said Thursday in the first confirmation by local officials that the group was plotting attacks in Thailand.

Israel has strongly accused Iran of being behind the botched plot, a bombing in India and an attempted bombing in the former Soviet republic of Georgia this week, which Iran has denied.

Citing the similarity of bombs used in New Delhi and Tbilisi, national police chief Gen. Prewpan Dhamapong said that Thai authorities now "know for certain that (the target) was Israeli diplomats."

"Israel expects (the Security Council) to issue a clear condemnation today, without any further delay or equivocation."

RON PROSOR, ISRAEL'S AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED NATIONS

"This issue was about individuals and the targets were specific," he said. "This was something personal."

Israel has accused Iran of waging a covert campaign of state terror and has threatened military strikes on Iranian nuclear facilities. Iran has blamed the Jewish state for the recent killings of Iranian atomic scientists and has denied responsibility for all three bomb plots.

The explosion Monday in New Delhi tore through an Israeli diplomatic vehicle, wounding the driver and a diplomat's wife, and an attempt was foiled the same day in Georgia.

The plot in Bangkok was discovered when explosives in the men's rented house blew up by mistake Tuesday. Surveillance video showed the three men leaving their destroyed house just after the first blast.

'Underwear bomber' given life sentence

U.S. MARSHALS SERVICE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

▶ Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab

Defiantly declaring "a day of victory," a Nigerian man was given a mandatory life sentence Thursday for trying to blow up a packed jetliner with a bomb sewn into his underwear. People aboard the flight testified that the failed attack had disturbed their sleep and travels for more than two years.

Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab was the same remorseless man who four months ago pleaded guilty to all charges related to Northwest Airlines Flight 253.

The 25-year-old, European-educated son of a wealthy banker, Abdulmutallab tried to set off the bomb minutes before the Amsterdam-to-Detroit flight landed.

Had the bomb not fizzled, nearly 300 people aboard the flight would probably have been killed.

Before Thursday's sentencing, four passengers and a crew member from the flight told U.S. District Judge Nancy Edmunds that they have struggled to live and travel normally since the incident on Christmas Day 2009.

During their remarks, Abdulmutallab appeared disinterested, rarely looking up from his seat just a few metres away.

Abdulmutallab "has never expressed doubt or regret or remorse about his mission," Edmunds said.

Life in prison is a "just punishment for what he has done," the judge said. "The defendant poses a significant ongoing threat to the safety of American citizens everywhere."

Gunmen storm Nigerian prison

Armed gunmen from a radical Islamist sect stormed a federal prison in Nigeria amid heavy gunfire and explosions, killing one guard and freeing 119 inmates in an assault marking its growing national ambitions, officials said Thursday.

The sect known as Boko Haram claimed it freed seven followers in the attack that happened just after 7 p.m. Wednesday in the town of Koton-Karifi, just south of Nigeria's capital Abuja. Though authorities declined to say the attack was the work of the group, it mirrored another massive prison break orchestrated by the sect in 2010.

The gunmen blasted through the prison's gate with a bomb and killed one guard in a firefight, officials said. Those inside the prison escaped in the fighting, though authorities had recaptured about 25 of them by late Thursday afternoon, local prison official Hadiza Aminu said.

The government said an investigation had begun into the attack.

"One does not really know why" the gunmen attacked, Nigeria Prisons Service spokesman Kayode Odeyemi said. "It might be that some of the armed robbers are trying to free the armed robbers there awaiting trial."

However, a spokesman using the nom de guerre Abul-Qaqa claimed the attack Thursday night in a conference call with journalists in Maiduguri, the sect's spiritual home in Nigeria's arid and dusty northeast.

Wednesday night's attack matched one Boko Haram launched in Bauchi state in September 2010 that freed about 700 inmates there. The sect spokesman said Thursday night attacks would continue until Nigeria's weak federal government releases all its detained members.

Real estate crash haunts Spain

Economic downturn has left ghost towns in its wake across the country

PAUL WHITE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A thistle grows in front of apartment blocks in Sesena, Spain. What was supposed to be a vibrant mini-city has since turned into a ghost development due to Spain's struggling economy.

Towering apartment blocks, complete with swimming pools and playgrounds, loom over empty streets, weed-filled lots and gaping excavation pits. The lone bank in this mega-development, nicknamed "Manhattan," closed two years ago and most storefronts are bricked up.

Apartments galore are for sale here and prices are plunging.

More than 13,000 apartments were supposed to go up to create a mini-city for 30,000 people just 45 minutes outside of Madrid. But only 5,100 were built, many are uninhabited and regular Spaniards who bought them as investments are now competing to offload them for huge losses.

Spain's real estate crash and economic implosion have turned what was supposed to become a vibrant suburban paradise for young Spanish couples and their children into one of the most visible monuments of the country's boom gone bust. Such modern-day ghost towns have become a familiar part of the Spanish landscape, abandoned shells left to slowly decay.

The number of foreclosure proceedings skyrocketed during the economic crisis. Nearly 530,000 were granted by courts from 2008 through September of 2011, most to banks taking homes, housing developments and vast tracts of land for residential and commercial real estate projects that may never become reality.

The banks were ordered this month by the recently elected centre-right government to set aside billions of additional euros to cover these toxic real estate assets valued at $232 billion US just as Spain teeters on the edge of what could be a lengthy recession.

In Sesena and other ghost developments around Spain, some banks are already trying to unload finished apartments at discounts of up to 50 per cent of their original prices. But that's hurting untold numbers of Spaniards who invested savings and took out big loans to buy property they thought they'd be able to rent or sell for a higher price. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UN condemns Syrian regime

U.N. Secretary General Ban Ki-moon accused the Syrian regime of committing "almost certain" crimes against humanity Thursday as activists reported fresh violence and the arrest of several prominent dissidents, including a U.S.-born blogger.

Speaking to reporters in Vienna, Ban demanded the Syrian regime stop using indiscriminate force against civilians caught up in fighting between government troops and President Bashar Assad's opponents.

"We see neighbourhoods shelled indiscriminately," Ban told reporters in Vienna.

Syrian activists said government forces attacked Daraa on Thursday, carrying out arrests and shooting randomly in the city where the uprising against Assad erupted 11 months ago. They also reported intense clashes between army defectors and government troops in the central province of Hama.

The push into Daraa followed sieges on the rebellious cities of Homs and Hama and appears to be part of an effort by the regime to extinguish major pockets of dissent.

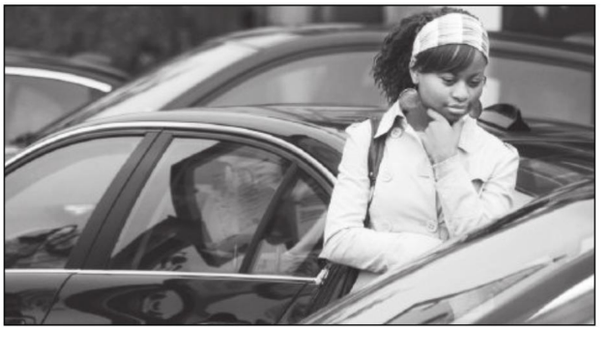
How much is your insurance loyalty costing you?

Consumers shouldn't let loyalty get in the way of savings

Yes it's true, insurance costs seem to be rising everywhere you look and like most consumers, you worry that switching insurance companies means losing your "loyalty discount." The truth is that switching insurance companies may cause you to lose your loyalty discount (if you had one in the first place), but that doesn't necessarily mean you'll pay more for car insurance or that you can't save a bundle in the end. The fact is, some insurance companies may provide a small discount on your premium if you've been with them for a long time – but that small discount can quickly become irrelevant if another company has a rate for you that is significantly less than what you're currently paying. After all, what good is 5% off of an annual rate of $1,500 (a $75 savings) if you could pay $1,100 (a $400 savings) with another company?

The rates charged by different insurance companies to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the exact same coverage, can vary by hundreds and even thousands of dollars. And with so many insurance companies providing car insurance in Ontario, odds are you are not currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile. Insurance quoting sites like InsuranceHotline.com can help by providing an independent, unbiased rate comparison from its network of over 30 insurance companies to find you a lower rate available for your profile.

Sadly, the misguided fear of repercussions from their current insurer is what keeps many consumers from taking action and shopping around. The truth is that your insurance company has no way of knowing if you are shopping around for a better rate. In fact, even if they did know you were checking out your options, you cannot be penalized in any way for trying to find a better deal. So don't let loyalty get in your way of shopping for a lower insurance rate.



Have you lost faith in your current insurance provider? Now save hundreds – even thousands – by shopping around for auto insurance. All without affecting your coverage. We've harnessed the search power of the internet to offer you choice. It's fast, free and easy to use, with absolutely no obligation. Then your loyalty can be requited.

Weapons traffic has increased: Mosul police Cross-border smuggling routes have existed for generations

The rifles are first taken apart and hidden in cigarette cartons and kerosene tanks. Younis al-Lehaibi and his sons then divide them into their trucks and head out to Iraq's vast, dusty border with Syria. Their objective: To smuggle weapons to Syrian rebels who seek the overthrow of President Bashar Assad.

It's a turnaround from the height of the Iraqi war six years ago, when weapons and fighters would cross from Syria to aid fellow Sunnis in Iraq.

Mindful of roaming border police, al-Lehaibi ditches the trucks once in Syria and travels the rest of the way on donkey. The Kalashnikovs are put back together, cleaned and handed over to a boy who hands him cash and brings the weapons into a nearby village.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS:

▶ Iraqi smuggler Younis al-Lehaibi hides AK-47 parts.

Al-Lehaibi, 46, carefully examines his payment — usually $1,000 in U.S. dollars — to make sure the currency isn't counterfeit. And then he slips back into Iraq — eight hours after he left his home in the city of Mosul, 360 kilometres northwest of Baghdad.

Until a month ago, al-Lehaibi said, it wasn't worth the effort. There wasn't much profit in smuggling Kalashnikov rifles. The Syrian rebels had all the weapons they needed.

The spike in demand likely reflects how Syria's uprising, as it approaches its first complete year, has transformed into an outright clash of forces as the opposition turns more to armed action.

For al-Lehaibi, pale man with reddish hair, the jump in demand for weapons means business has never been better.

"It's about making a good, profitable business," al-Lehaibi said, describing his weekly smuggling trips in an interview with The Associated Press.

He hastily added: "It's also to help the Syrian people topple the tyrant who suppresses his nation for decades with severe brutality." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

$1,000

A Kalashnikov rifle, known as an AK-47, usually sells for no more than $200, al-Lehaibi said. But their newfound demand has encouraged dealers to raise the wholesale price to about $700. Smuggler Younis al-Lehaibi acts as the middle man, making a tidy profit by charging $1,000.

U.S. hits Iran with sanctions

The United States is slapping sanctions on Iran's ministry of intelligence and security, asserting that it supports global terrorism, commits human rights abuses against Iranians and participates in ongoing repression in Syria.

The Treasury Department announced Thursday that it added the ministry to its list of specially designated global terrorists.

The announcement said the ministry had helped al-Qaida agents in Iran and provided them with identity cards and passports and had given money and weapons to al-Qaida in Iraq.

Sharing our pride. Shaping our future.
Act now!
Did you know that dental assistants in eight provinces have been regulated since the '70s?
The Ontario government has agreed to consider the regulation of Ontario dental assistants and HPRAC (Health Professionals Regulatory Advisory Council) is now in the consultation period. You have until February 24 to provide feedback.
This is your opportunity to show your support for the regulation of Ontario dental assistants. Visit www.hprac.org, and select "Dental Assistants" under "Current Ministerial Referrals". Scroll down to "How to Submit Your Feedback".
When regulation is passed all dental assistants will be required to obtain a formal education to work in a dental office – rather than being trained on the job.
Regulation will mean that you can be completely confident everyone at your dentist's office is properly educated to protect your health and safety.
Together we can ensure that Ontario families continue to receive the highest level of safe dental care.

Rescuers struggle to save dolphins

No explanation why dolphins are beaching themselves off Cape Cod Many theories being floated

There's no good spot on Cape Cod for dolphins to continue this winter's massive and unexplained beachings, but a group of 11 has chosen one of the worst.

The remote inlet is a place where the tides recede fast and far, and that's left the animals mired in a greyish-brown mud.

Walking is the only way to reach the animals, but it's not easy. The muck releases a footstep only after a sucking pop. One rescue volunteer hits a thigh-deep "hole" and tumbles.

One dolphin is dead, but the other 10 appear healthy, and some thump their tails in the shallows, struggling to move. Rescuers decide the best course is to wait for the incoming tide to free the dolphins, then boats can try to herd them out of trouble. The only alternative is hauling them to a waiting trailer, and open water. But the trailer is nearly 1.6 kilometres away.

Waiting has risks. Dolphins can't survive long on land, and there's no guarantee the boats can push the dolphins out to safety.

"Now's where we start crossing our fingers," said Brian Sharp of the International Fund for Animal Welfare (IFAW).

Workers at the IFAW, which has led the rescue efforts, tag and take blood samples of the stranded animals, necropsies have been done on dead dolphins and a Congressional briefing was held early this month in the push for answers. But researchers can offer only theories about things such as changes in weather, water temperature or behaviour of the dolphins' prey.

Geography may also play a role, if the dolphins are getting lost along the Cape's jagged inner coastline.

Rescuers work in pairs to move the dolphins on slings, bringing them closer together and pointing the right way.

Not all the dolphins are on board, though. One drifts off to the left, where he could beach again. The manager of the stranding team, Katie Moore, slides over, grabs its dorsal fin, and gives it a push in the right direction.

The dolphins would all eventually reach the bay.

Perspective

- A year ago, this week's 11 stranded dolphins would have seemed remarkable.
- But in the last month, 177 short-beaked common dolphins have stranded on Cape Cod, and 124 have died.

▶ This undated image provided by New Mexico State University shows the Trinidad Moruga Scorpion, the new hottest pepper on the planet, as identified by NMSU's Chile Pepper Institute. Researchers determined the golf ball-sized pepper has a mean Scoville Heat Unit value of 1.2 million.

This scorpion's bite meaner than a sting

- Pepper is not only the hottest, but most flavourful
- Two of the peppers can spice up meals for a week

There are super-hot chili varieties. And then there's the sweat-inducing, tear-generating, mouth-on-fire Trinidad Moruga Scorpion.

With a name like that, it's not surprising that months of research by the experts at New Mexico State University's Chile Pepper Institute have identified the variety as the new hottest pepper on the planet. The golf ball-sized pepper scored the highest among a handful of chili breeds reputed to be among the hottest in the world.

"You take a bite. It doesn't seem so bad, and then it builds and it builds and it builds. So it is quite nasty," Paul Bosland, a renowned pepper expert and director of the chili institute, said of the pepper's heat.

Researchers were pushed by hot sauce makers, seed producers and others in the spicy foods industry to establish the average heat levels for super-hot varieties in an effort to quash unscientific claims of which peppers are actually the hottest.

1.2M

The Trinidad Moruga Scorpion's mean heat topped more than 1.2 million units on the Scoville heat scale, while fruits from some individual plants reached two million heat units.

That's something that hadn't been done before, Bosland said. "The question was, could the Chile Pepper Institute establish the benchmark for chili heat?" he said. "Chili heat is a complex thing, and the industry doesn't like to base it on just a single fruit that's a record holder. It's too variable."

The team planted about 125 plants of each variety — the Trinidad Moruga Scorpion, the Trinidad Scorpion, the 7-pot, the Chocolate 7-pot and the Bhut Jolokia, which was a previous record-holder identified by the institute and certified by Guinness World Records in 2007. Randomly selected mature fruits were harvested, dried and ground to powder. The compounds that produce heat sensation — the capsaicinoids — were then extracted and examined.

Super-size chocolate bars on their way out

Mars Inc. to stop producing candy exceeding 250 calories next year Twix, Milky Way, Bounty included

Snickers bars may soon satisfy you a bit less.

Mars Inc., the makers of popular candy brands including M&M's and Twix, will stop making chocolate products that exceed 250 calories by the end of next year.

That means king-sized versions of the company's chocolate bars will disappear from candy aisles. The privately-held company also makes Milky Way, 3Musketeers, Bounty and Kudos bars.

Mars may not have to make radical changes to reach its goal, however; a standard Snickers bar currently has 280 calories. A package of Twix and a bag of peanut M&M's each clock in at 250 calories.

The company first posted the goal on its website in September of last year, but the plans got renewed attention after media organizations reported on it this week. Representatives from Mars declined to provide further details Thursday, noting that it has not yet finalized how it will reach its caloric goals. But the company said in an emailed statement that it has shown a "broad-based commitment to health and nutrition" in recent years.

In 2007, for example, Mars said it would no longer buy advertising space or time if more than a quarter of the audience was likely to be younger than 12. The company also noted that it has introduced several new products that are less than 200 calories.

And by 2015, the company plans to reduce sodium levels in all its food products by 25 per cent.

Mars, based in McLean, Va., also owns Uncle Ben's, Seeds of Change and Whiskas pet food.

No filters necessary for social media sites: EU court

An EU court is ruling that social networking sites can't be compelled to install general filters to prevent illegal trading of music and other copyrighted material.

The EU Court of Justice ruled Thursday that requiring such filters, covering all the site's users, would not sufficiently protect personal data or the freedom to receive and impart information.

SABAM, a Belgian company that represents authors, composers and music publishers, had objected to the practices of Netlog NV, a social networking site, claiming users' profiles allowed protected works to be made available illegally. In November, SABAM lost a separate case in which it sought to require Internet service providers to install filters that would prevent the illegal downloading of files. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MACS TO BECOME EVEN MORE LIKE THE IPHONE

Apple on Thursday released a developer preview of an update for the Mac operating system, Mountain Lion, that will copy more features and apps from the iPhone and iPad to the Mac.

Apple said the new software will be on sale this summer, a year after it released the latest update, Lion. The preview version will help software developers make products that take advantage of the new features. Mountain Lion will include Game Center and will be integrated with iCloud, the new Internet storage service designed for the mobile devices.

The new Messages app, also copied from the mobile operating system, will replace iChat. A new Notification Center will show alerts from email and calendar programs, just like on the iPhone.

Apple started the trend of making its Mac operating system more like its phone and tablet operating system, iOS, with the release of Lion.

1 Pinterest.com: It's the next Facebook or Twitter. Quietly but suddenly, this invite-only virtual pinboard where you "organize and share things you love" has exploded in popularity. It's still technically in beta, but is already one of the Top 10 social networks. Before you know it "pin" and "repin" will become as common terms as "tweet" and "retweet." You can "Like" it if you like.

2 Purple squirrel: Since a Pennsylvania couple discovered a purple squirrel in their backyard, the story has gone nuts on the Internet and a @purplsqurl Twitter account and Purple Squirrel Facebook page were started. A purple squirrel? For real? In related news, I think I saw a green chipmunk in my backyard. And a red bear. And a sasquatch.

3 Dare to wear red: Giving more meaning to the colour red this month, the Stephen Lewis Foundation dares Canadians to wear red and raise money to turn the tide of HIV-AIDS in Africa. The three top fundraisers by Feb. 29th will get to walk the runway at Toronto Fashion Week in March. Get more info at daretowearlove.com.

4 Tweet on Whitney Houston: A teenager on Twitter broke the news of Whitney's death a full 45 minutes before the mainstream media. The tweet, from @AjaDiorNavy, read thusly: "omgg , my aunt tiffany who work for whitney houston just found whitney houston dead in the tub . such ashame & sad :-(" Further proof social media really has changed everything.

5 Linsanity: LeBron who? New York Knicks point guard Jeremy Lin has come out of nowhere to become one of the most exciting players in the NBA — and one of its biggest new brands. He has led the must-watch Knicks to seven straight wins, including a buzzer-beater in Toronto against the Raps this week. On Twitter, he's gained 200,000 followers in one week @jlin7. A sure sign he's made it.

6 What Makes You Happy: A magazine with one of the longest titles ever — What Makes You Happy — launched this month with comedian Rick Mercer on the cover. It will tackle "happy, inspiring, silly, important, useful and/or frivolous" articles addressing different aspects of happiness. If you don't read it, just listen to Don't Worry, Be Happy. Works like a charm.

7 Will & Kate Barbie dolls: To commemorate their one-year anniversary April 29th, Mattel announced this week it's releasing Will and Kate royal-wedding Barbie dolls. You can preorder the Barbie Collector Royal Wedding William and Catherine Doll Set on Amazon. I'm holding out for my Kim Kardashian and Reggie Bush dolls.

8 Justin Bieber: The Biebs made world headlines this week when he made a dying girl's wish come true. Six-year-old Avalanna Routh has a rare form of brain cancer and her dream was to meet Bieber, so he flew her and her parents to N.Y.C. on Monday for a private meeting where they hung out and played board games. Never say never.

When life gives you lemons ...

... make a festival

Workers made a French castle with lemons and oranges during the 79th Lemon Festival in Menton, southern France, on Thursday. The theme for the festival, which involves more than 300 workers and uses 145 tonnes of citrus fruit, is "Menton welcomes the Regions of France."

Parades are a regular part of the festival, which runs until March 7.

Celebrate citrus

To celebrate a number of regions of France, citrus displays depict different aspects of the country, such as the Eiffel Tower for Paris, pictured right. Menton grows several varieties of lemons. The Palais Carnolès, a two-hectare public garden in Menton, grows over 100 kinds of fruit. METRO

Synopsis

With just a few more sleeps until the biggest night in Hollywood, this week the Reel Guys breakdown the show; from the host to who should win and who will win best picture.

2 scene

Scene in brief

Once again Nicholas Cage turns up the heat as Johnny Blaze, the stunt biker who sacrifices his soul and becomes a fiery vigilante. This time he's hiding out in eastern Europe and joins a group of rebel monks to save a boy from the devil. Johnny Whitworth (of Empire Records fame) takes on the role of bad guy Ray Carrigan, who becomes Blackout.

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN

Oscars 'crystallized'

Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin share their thoughts on Billy Crystal reprising his role as Oscar host ◐ And they place their bets on best picture

Richard: We talked about the Oscars a few weeks ago, but we didn't touch on Billy Crystal coming back as host. I loved the old Crystal shows, but really hope he finds a new fresh approach for this year. I'm not interested in seeing him do another opening montage where he inserts himself into the nominated footage. What do you, oh comedy guru, hope he does with the show?

Mark: Oh, Richard, you know he's gonna do it; this time in black and white, in flip-flops and silent. Those montage sequences are like a drug to him — his name is Crystal, after all. It'll be old and hoary, but at least there will be some laughs. Of course, Billy's getting so old he'll have to turn his hearing aid up extremely loud and the teleprompter will have to be incredibly close. Your prediction on Best Picture, Richard?

RC: The Artist was the most fun I had at the movies last year but I'm not sure that means it deserves a best picture win. I think it will take it because it has won all the guild awards, but in my heart it's between Moneyball and Tree of Life. What's your choice?

MB: My choice is The Descendants, a movie of great maturity and mid-tone emotion. I had considered it a shoo-in until recently, because I thought The Artist was original to the point of gimmickry. But now I think The Artist is going to take it. It's a movie I liked a lot, but it's not very subtle. As far as Tree of Life goes, I thought it was pretentious hooey. And I heard they used non-union dinosaurs.

RC: Pretentious hooey! I accept that the birth of the universe sequence separates the men from the film snobs, but I loved how evocative of childhood it was. It captured something deeply emotional, even spiritual, whereas The Artist simply entertained the eye. The Descendants, for me, was a so-so movie with nice performances. Perhaps if Clooney had been working opposite a dinosaur I might have enjoyed it more.

MB: Yeah, I know, Tree of Life certainly has its fans. The divisive film I loved was Extremely Loud and Incredibly Close. I guess the childhood depicted in that picture — melancholic, guilt-ridden, borderline Aspergers — was evocative of my own. But it doesn't stand a chance to win the Oscar, and I've made my inner peace with that.

The Secret World of Arrietty
Genre: Animation
Director: Hiromasa Yonebayashi
Stars: Bridgit Mendler, Amy Poehler, Will Arnett
●●●½
Already a hit in Asia, The Secret World of Arietty makes its North American debut with a new voice cast — including Carol Burnett — but the gorgeous animation intact. The story of a young ailing boy who discovers tiny people living beneath the floorboards of his house is gently-paced kid's entertainment. The story unfurls slowly, scenes take their time to develop and the animation is classic, not frenetic. Kung Fu Panda Part 2 this isn't. The Secret World of Arietty may be a tad on the slow side for kids over the age of 10, but for the younger ones it's a wildly imaginative introduction to anime and fantasy storytelling.
● RICHARD CROUSE

This Means War
Genre: Comedy/Action
Director: McG
Stars: Reese Witherspoon, Chris Pine, Tom Hardy
●
Sure to be one of the most contrived films of the year, This Means War features two buddy CIA operatives (Chris Pine, Tom Hardy) competing for the same woman (Reese Witherspoon). In short, the romantic-actioner is Bridget Jones' Diary meets Mr. & Mrs. Smith — only its miles from being as watchable as either.

And as phony as the romance plays, the action doesn't add much lift to ease the pain. Full of lame set-ups and unbelievable situations (a government agent with a condo that would make Donald Trump jealous? Really?), this groaner doesn't hold an ounce of plausibility and concludes as disappointing as a box of rancid Valentine candy.

In Darkness
Genre: Animation
Director: Agnieszka Holland
Stars: Robert Wieckiewicz, Benno Fürmann
●●●●
An Oscar-nominee for Best Foreign Language Film, great performances aid In Darkness to construct the factual tale of a thieving opportunist who risked lives to hide Jews in the filthy sewers of occupied-Poland during the Second World War. Although the structure of Holocaust survival stories have become, dare I say it, almost familiar on-screen by now, Agnieszka Holland still boils down the essence of humanity and shapes the horror to be palatable, suspenseful and deeply affecting long after the film's conclusion.

Puppet
Genre: Documentary
Director: David Soll
Stars: Dan Hurlin, Tom Lee
●●●½
The documentary Puppet meshes artist Dan Hurlin's launch of an ambitious play and an educational discourse on puppetry. While the metaphorical strength of Hurlin's Disfarmer (where the character shrinks into "extinction") fuels the historical relevance of the art form's antiquity, the tenuous nature of criticism only adds more weight to the film. Stifler, in skates

Seann William Scott is known for his lug-head characters
But he has some highbrow tastes — with a frat boy twist, of course

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Seann William Scott is best known for playing Steve 'Stifmeister' Stifler in the American Pie series of movies. The character was a hard partying lug-head, who, according to the direct-to-DVD sequel Band Camp, became a porno director.

His specialty in films like Road Trip, Dude, Where's My Car? and The Dukes of Hazzard is playing hapless stoners and lug-heads so it may surprise you that his DVD player is currently hosting La Vie en Rose. That's right, the life story of singer Édith Piaf.

"That may be my favourite movie of all time," he says.

"All my friends played hockey and I was always envious because all the girls liked the hockey players."
SEANN WILLIAM SCOTT

I tell him I once interviewed the movie's star Marion Cotillard.

"Is she hot?" he asks. "I have such a huge crush on her. She's got a boyfriend though. I went on the computer and looked up who she's dating. A serious boyfriend for a long time. Sucks."

That's the Seann William Scott audiences know and love. As an actor he usually finds the unexpected angle on a joke, and knows how to reel the viewer in.

We have a laugh before moving on to talk about his new film Goon. He plays a hockey enforcer even though he didn't grow up with the sport. "I'm more of a fan now," he says. "When I grew up in Minnesota I played baseball, football and basketball. So in the wintertime that's what I played, which is odd, because it's Minnesota. All my friends played hockey and I was always envious because all the girls liked the hockey players. Nobody came to the basketball games.

"Since the movie I have a greater appreciation of it now because it is so intense. I love hockey now. I think the relationship between the players is way cool.

"The guys are just closer and there is a sense of humour about it. Maybe it's a more manly sport than basketball … I'm sure a lot of basketball players won't appreciate that."

On shooting in Winnipeg

How did Seann William Scott like filming just north of home?

"I expected it to be like Minnesota, but the girls were hotter in Winnipeg," he says. "They dress better and they're a little more hip. I was confused. Minnesota is just below. How'd they get so hip? I think they just eat better. They're not stuffing cheese curds down their throats."

Director spent years trying to get Norwegian Wood into production How he finally realized his dream

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Getting Norwegian Wood, a story of first love, loss and desire, before the camera was a passion project for its French-Vietnamese-director Tran Anh Hung.

The Oscar-nominated filmmaker (1994 Best Foreign Language Film nominee for The Scent of Green Papaya) first read Haruki Murakami's bestselling novel in 1994 and became convinced it would make a great film.

"I liked the idea of first love and that Watanabe, as soon as he encounters first love, loses it," he says.

"It was a strong idea because there is an element of danger when you fall in love for the first time."

The tricky part was getting permission from the notoriously prickly author.

"Every time I went to Japan I tried to talk to someone about adapting it," Tran said, "but no one would talk to me. It turned out that Murakami wouldn't allow adaptations of his books."

Years later Tran discovered the author had given permission for a film to be made from Tony Takitani, one of his short stories. Emboldened by the news Tran wrote a letter to the author asking for a meeting.

His request was granted, but he first had to meet with Murakami's advisors in Tokyo. All 12of them.

After two days of grilling — "They asked all kinds of questions," he says — an audience with the author was granted and the permission he sought was also given, with a few conditions.

"It was clear he was giving it to me, not the producers," Trans says, adding, "He also wanted to read and approve the script and asked for the budget amount."

Next came the painstaking adaptation process.

"We communicated in English. I wrote the script in French, translated it into English for Murakami and Japanese for the producer."

Going back and forth they formed the Japanese language script into the film playing in theatres this week, a loose adaptation that maintains the integrity of the novel but is painted with the director's personal touches.

"A good adaptation is not just about adapting the story," he says. "I couldn't do that. For me it's about adapting the feelings, complications and emotions. If someone else had adapted this book they would make it differently.

"That's why it is really personal for me."

Ay, caramba! Simpsons mark another milestone

500th episode of Simpsons to air Sunday on Global

CASSANDRA GARRISON

METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

It's hard to believe that we've been hearing Bart Simpson say "Eat my shorts" since 1989, but the world will be graced with the 500th episode of The Simpsons this Sunday on Global.

The episode, titled At Long Last Leave, will find the Simpsons driven out of their beloved hometown of Springfield when their fellow neighbours finally give them the boot.

The Simpsons join a community from the other side of the tracks and make an unsuccessful attempt to return to Springfield.

Look for a cameo from Wikileaks founder Julian Assange, as himself. A special feature song by Alison Krauss will also be included.

Enter Gervais... as a dolphin

ONLY ON FAMILY GUY. British funnyman Ricky Gervais stops by Family Guy Sunday night to play... a dolphin? Yes, the Golden Globes host will portray a marine mammal who moves to Quahog and overstays his welcome at Peter's place. (Fox, Global)

The curious case of great movies on TV

YOU MIGHT ACTUALLY TURN OFF NETFLIX. If you're in the mood for a movie Saturday night, there's no good reason to get off your couch. For those seeking blockbuster thrills, try the slick rebooted version of Star Trek, airing on Showcase, or the Academy Award-winning 2008 Batman flick The Dark Knight, on Peachtree TV. If it's Oscar-certified prestige pictures you're after, The Curious Case of Benjamin Button airs on Bravo while 1995's Braveheart is on AMC. Finally, those in search of lighter fare might enjoy The School of Rock on GameTV or the Jennifer Garner comedy 13 Going on 30, airing on MuchMusic.

A new funnyman

SNL WRITER. The title of John Mulaney's stand-up comedy special, New in Town, is apt given that few people probably know who he is (even though the name actually refers to a hilarious anecdote). But comedy fans would do well to check out the Saturday Night Live writer's first special, airing Saturday, in which he cleverly mines comic gold from a wide range of seemingly mundane topics, whether he's talking about Home Alone 2 or the simple joy of doing nothing. Is the zombie apocalypse near?

Walking Dead star Andrew Lincoln says even his wife doesn't know the answer to the show's big mystery

Andrew Lincoln, who stars as Sheriff Rick Grimes in The Walking Dead, says he loves a secret.

That's partly why Lincoln has told no one the answer to what's become the biggest mystery of the AMC zombie drama: What scientist Dr. Jenner whispered to Rick in the season one finale.

"Not even my wife knows what he whispered to me," Lincoln said in an interview Wednesday.

Lincoln said that in keeping the secret he feels he is being true to his character in the show.

"He chooses not to tell people so why would I tell," Lincoln said of the sheriff.

What was said has only been heard by a handful of people, and the mystery has become the object of intense scrutiny by fans.

Lincoln said he realized just how curious people were when a show editor revealed he had scrolled through hours of show footage and listened in on radio traffic to find the only two takes where the brief remarks were audible. The cast says the contents of the conversation will be revealed this season.

Lincoln, who says the comments are "pivotal" for Rick, hints that the message was not good news.

"This is a scientist who seemingly held all the cards to what this epidemic is about and I do think, you know, you would imagine he would have something of value to say on that matter," Lincoln said. "Well, he chose to kill himself."

The actor also said that Rick and his ragged group of survivors will likely leave the farm where they've taken refuge this season.

"Something happens and they realize very quickly that the farm is not as secure as they may think," he said.

The series continues Sunday at 9 p.m. Eastern. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHERE DOES INDIE MUSIC GO FROM HERE?

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

When Justin "Bon Iver" Vernon began writing his second album, he didn't set out to win a Grammy. Out there in Wisconsin, he simply wanted to document the feelings in his heart. Maybe a few people would be interested enough to buy his music and then come out to a gig or two.

Imagine, then, what must have been going through his mind last Sunday night. Vernon is about as indie as they come in sound, style, aesthetic, attitude, history and image. His two wins at the Grammys demonstrate how, after years of being on the outside, indie music is now receiving mainstream attention.

And let's not forget that Adele is an indie artist. Yes, 21 is distributed by Columbia Records, a division of Sony, but she's signed to XL Recordings, which is a department of Beggars Banquet, a British indie label with roots that go back to 1973.

For those who thought last year's Grammys was a fluke — wins by Arcade Fire and the ascent of Mumford & Sons to platinum-selling status — are either really pleased or really scared by these developments. Pleased because these great artists are having a chance to be heard by more people. Scared because mainstream attention threatens to have the clubby indie scene invaded by mainstream people.

Indie folk — and here I'm speaking as one of them — feel, rightly or wrongly, a certain sense of ownership when it comes to the artists we discover and nurture. We root for them to become big — but not too big because that would somehow sour our relationship with them. We'd prefer if they'd just stay our little secret.

If, heaven forbid, they became commercial stars and relegated to premiere league status, wouldn't that make them no better than the dreckish Justin Bieber and Lady Gaga? No, the band hasn't changed; it just that, well, circumstances are different. Share? Us? No!

It's silly, of course, but that's often the prevailing attitude.

One of the best lyric fragments comes from the Sloan song Coax Me. It goes "It's not the band I hate/it's their fans." So far, artists like Arcade Fire and Bon Iver have managed to retain their indie cred despite being commercially successful. Will their old fans stick with them? Or will they bail in favour of something newer, cooler and less popular? We'll see.

‘I promise I won’t beat you’

Chris Brown has an awful new pick-up line, according to Us Weekly

THE WORD

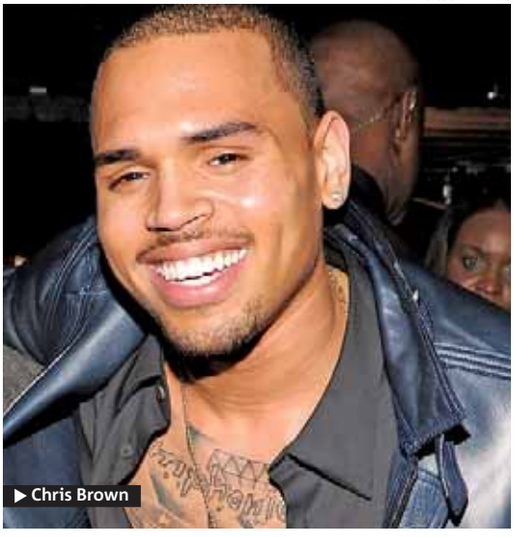
DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Here’s the thing about Chris Brown and The Word: Yes, he brutally beat his then-girlfriend Rihanna in 2009. But the man served the sentence our judicial system thought was fair and so he should be allowed to get on with his life and music without a stupid gossip columnist dredging it up all the time.

My prerogative is that we all know he’s a cowardly woman beater. Do with that information what you will.

Except the idiot continues to open his big mouth and make jokes about domestic violence and so, sorry, I can’t drop it.

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES



▶ Chris Brown

According to Us Weekly, Brown has a totally romantic new pick-up line. A woman tells the magazine that Brown approached her on Feb. 10 at the Grammy gift lounge to ask for her number.

“Can I get your number? I promise I won’t beat you,” the woman said Brown told her.

“He and his friends laughed, then one yelled, ‘That’s his new line!’” she said. “I wanted to throw up.”

There are many ways I would like to respond to this stupid, hurtful and awful running joke of Brown’s but I don’t have the space. I’ll just say: It is my sincere hope that one day Chris Brown has a daughter and maybe, just maybe, he will feel sick at the thought of any man laying a hand on her. And then he will finally realize just what a terrible thing he did in his past and will finally know that making flippant asides about beating women is not OK.

But somehow, even then, I don’t think he’ll get it.

Angelina gets death threats

Angelina Jolie and the actors who star in her directorial debut, In the Land of Blood and Honey, have been receiving death threats over the film’s content, according to The Guardian.

“There were things sent to me, there were things posted online,” Jolie says. “The cast have never complained to me about these threats but I’ve heard through other people it was happening. One of them did have their windows smashed in on their cars and someone else had an issue when their phone was hacked and emails were sent out saying they were from them and saying they had been hurt.” METRO

▶ Whitney Houston

Just what was Whitney on?

In the investigation into what exactly caused Whitney Houston’s death, investigators are reportedly interviewing the late singer’s doctors about what sort of medications had been prescribed, according to the Associated Press.

“We’ve already contacted a number of doctors with requests for records,” a coroner’s official confirms, adding that such a move is common in investigations such as this one. The move brings to mind the investigation into Michael Jackson’s death, which resulted in his doctor, Conrad Murray, being convicted on manslaughter charges.

Funeral

The rumours that Bobby Brown might not be on the invite list for ex-wife Whitney Houston’s funeral on Saturday are “totally untrue,” a family source tells People. “He is not being banned. That’s completely untrue,” says the source. Another family friend tells the magazine: “Bobby will be there at the funeral to support his (and Houston’s) daughter (Bobbi Kristina Brown, 18). There was some talk ... some people were angry at him, but that’s just grief. He will be there.” METRO

Seal takes off his wedding ring

The reality of wife Heidi Klum’s divorce filing must be starting to set in for Seal, as the singer was spotted not wearing his wedding ring for the first time, according to Us Weekly.

Seal arrived in Australia this week without the band on his finger. He’d been wearing it defiantly after Klum’s separation announcement last month.

“Just because we have decided to separate doesn’t necessarily mean you take off your ring and you’re no longer connected to that person,” Seal told Ellen DeGeneres in an interview at the time. METRO

Rumer Willis is finally speaking out about mom Demi Moore’s drug-related hospitalization and current rehab stint in Utah.

“My mother is on the road to recovery. It’s slow going but we believe in her,” Willis tells Germany’s TZ online.

“Of course the situation weighs heavily on me.” Willis is alleged to have been at home with Moore when an ambulance had to be called to rush Moore to the hospital. METRO

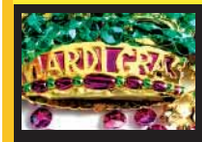
More than beads



After Carnival season wraps, many New Orleans locals give up their favourite foods for Lent. That makes Mardi Gras a great time to consume everything from gumbo and fired chicken to crawfish and pork chops, topped with King Cake and washed down with beer.

Sweet taste of New Orleans: Recipe for Praline Beignets with Café au Lait Icing.

In the name of tradition

You have to love a celebration that can combine beads, boobs and beverages, and still stay classy. OK, while Mardi Gras may not be the textbook example of class, it certainly is a world-renowned party.

Many revellers wandering the streets of New Orleans during the festivities will be enjoying a Hurricane — the city's hallmark cocktail.

Invented in the 1940s by French Quarter bar owner Pat O'Brien, it's a mix of rum and fruit juices served in a glass resembling a hurricane lamp.

The recipe is simple to make:

- 1 oz white rum
- 1 oz dark rum
- 2 oz passion fruit juice
- 1 oz orange juice
- ½ oz fresh lime juice
- 1 tbsp simple syrup
- 1 tbsp grenadine
- 1 orange slice & cherry

Shake all the ingredients together with ice and strain into an ice-filled glass. Garnish with the cherry and orange slice.

My alternative version adds half an ounce of Bacardi 151° Overproof Amber Rum ($34.99 - $44.95) to the mix. It kicks the drink into overdrive. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

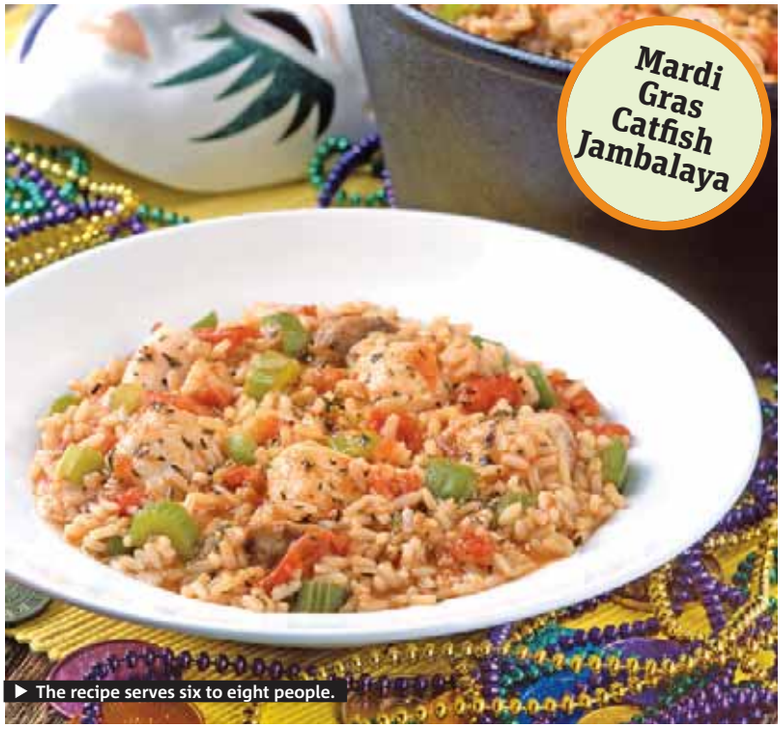
Beads, booze and jambalaya

New Orleans' Mardi Gras celebrations take place on Tuesday If you can't get there, enjoy a taste from home with this Southern favourite

This bowl full of colour and flavour is made even better with the addition of catfish.

The jambalaya should be thick. If it's too thin, simmer it uncovered until some liquid evaporates.

U.S. FARM-RAISED CATFISH



The recipe serves six to eight people.

Preparation:

1 In a Dutch oven or a wide saucepan heat oil over medium heat. Add sausage and cook until lightly browned. Add ham, onion, celery, green pepper and garlic, cook, stirring for about 8 to 10 minutes.

Ingredients:

- 1 tbsp (15 mL) olive oil
- ½ lb (250 g) mild or hot Italian sausage, cut into 1/2-inch (1-cm) pieces
- ½ lb (250 g) smoked ham or kielbasa, cut into 1-inch (2.5-cm) pieces
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 celery stalk, chopped
- 1 large green bell pepper, chopped
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 4 cups (1L) low-sodium chicken broth
- 1 can (28 oz/796 mL) diced tomatoes
- 1 ½ tsp (7 mL) thyme
- ½ tsp (2 mL) basil leaves
- 1 tsp (5 mL) each dried oregano leaves and hot pepper sauce
- 1 ½ cups (375 mL) uncooked long-grain rice
- 2 lbs (1 kg) Catfish fillets, cut into pieces about 1 ½ - inches (3.5-cm)
- Salt to taste

2 Stir in broth, tomatoes, herbs and hot pepper sauce. Bring to boil. Add rice. Cover and simmer, 15 minutes or until rice is partially cooked. Stir in catfish pieces and bring back to simmer. Cover and cook 15 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork and rice is tender. Remove from heat; cover and let stand for 5 minutes. Add salt to taste before serving.

Expos legend Carter dies at 57

Revered Hall of Fame catcher was diagnosed with brain tumour last May

Gary Carter was nicknamed "Kid" for good reason.

His smile, bubbly personality and eagerness to excel on a ballfield made him a joy to watch.

Even his Hall of Fame bronze plaque at Cooperstown shows him with a toothy grin — the Kid forever.

The star catcher, the first player enshrined in the Hall of Fame wearing an Expos cap, died Thursday. He was 57.

Mets spokesman Jay Horwitz said Carter died in the West Palm Beach, Fla., area.

Carter was diagnosed with a malignant brain tumour last May, two weeks after finishing his second season as coach at Palm Beach Atlantic University.

"Driven by a remarkable enthusiasm for the game, Gary Carter became one of the elite catchers of all-time."

MLB COMMISSIONER BUD SELIG

"I am deeply saddened to tell you all that my precious dad went to be with Jesus today at 4:10 p.m.," Carter's daughter Kimmy Bloemers wrote on the family website. "This is the most difficult thing I have ever had to write in my entire life but I wanted you all to know."

9

Overall, Gary Carter hit .262 with 324 home runs and 1,225 RBIs. He set the MLB record for putouts by a catcher, a testament to his durability despite nine knee operations.

Carter started his career with the Expos late in the 1974 season and was the face of the franchise in his 12 seasons with the team. He led Montreal to its only playoff berth in 1981.

In all, Carter played nearly two decades with the Expos, Mets, San Francisco Giants and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

He was an 11-time all-star and three-time Gold Glove winner whose 10th-inning single in Game 6 of the 1986 World Series helped the Mets mount a charge against the Red Sox and eventually beat them.

"His nickname 'the Kid' captured how Gary approached life," the Mets said in a statement. "He did everything with enthusiasm and with gusto.... He was a Hall of Famer in everything he did."

Lightning indicate they'll be sellers

The small list of NHL teams willing to sell off assets at the trade deadline grew by one on Thursday.

The Tampa Bay Lightning sent centre Dominic Moore and a seventh-round draft pick this year to the San Jose Sharks for a 2012 second-round pick. The trade was announced just before the Sharks faced the Lightning.

"Dominic is an extremely versatile player that has performed in a lot of important playoff games the last two years," San Jose general manager Doug Wilson said in a statement. "We feel that he is a great fit in several areas and his veteran presence will benefit our team greatly."

Tampa Bay GM Steve Yzerman announced earlier Thursday that he was also working on a deal involving veteran defenceman Pavel Kubina.

"We've decided to protect our interest and keep Pavel off the ice until the situation is resolved," Yzerman told reporters in Tampa.

Entering Thursday's game, Tampa was 10 points back of the final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

The Lightning join a list of teams willing to trade players ahead of the Feb. 27 trade deadline. Columbus, Edmonton and Carolina are among the others looking to make moves with an eye on the future. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sizing up the competition

The Leafs are eighth in the Eastern Conference with 64 points, but they are swimming in a shark tank of teams hungry for the playoffs Here's a look at two teams the Leafs could catch, and four teams that are chasing them

Sixth place:
New Jersey Devils
Record before Thursday:
32-20-4, 68 points
Games left: 26
Home games and record:
13 (15-10-3)
Road games and record:
13 (17-10-1)
Notable:
Reports surfaced Wednesday of a "secret" payroll level they cannot exceed, which could limit their ability to acquire talent at the trade deadline. Trade deadline talk now has the Devils interested in Winnipeg defenceman Johnny Oduya, whom they gave up in the Ilya Kovalchuk trade. The Devils are relatively comfortably ahead of the Leafs at the moment, and they have Kovalchuk going hot. It would be a considerable achievement for the Leafs to overtake them for the sixth seed.

Seventh place:
Ottawa Senators
Record before Thursday:
30-22-8, 68 points
Games left: 22
Home games and record:
12 (15-11-3)
Road games and record:
10 (15-11-5)
Notable:
The Battle of Ontario is renewed, and the fact these two teams are within four points of each other in the standings only heightens the rivalry. The addition of Kyle Turris has been tremendous for Ottawa; the club can now ice two decent scoring lines, with Turris centring the second line and Jason Spezza the first. Milan Michalek is healthy after a lengthy injury layoff and the club has found a way to give goalie Craig Anderson a bit of time off (he had appeared in 22 straight games in the New Year).

Ninth place:
Washington Capitals
Record before Thursday:
28-23-5, 61 points
Games left: 26
Home games and record:
12 (19-8-2)
Road games and record:
14 (9-15-3)
Notable:
Associate goaltending coach Olaf Kolzig, who is still a fan favourite in Washington, spoke out this week on Alex Ovechkin, saying the superstar must not get too wrapped up in the "rock star" status that comes with his position. It was a direct message to the Caps captain, who is not scoring like he is accustomed to.
The Caps have lost eight of their last 11 and appear to have plenty of trouble in their dressing room. The Leafs have to keep them a safe distance in the rear-view mirror.

Tenth place:
Winnipeg Jets
Record before Thursday:
26-26-6, 58 points
Games left: 24
Home games and record:
14 (16-9-2)
Road games and record:
10 (10-17-4)
Notable:
The Jets are continually in the middle of an argument about the post-season: Are they truly contenders or also-rans? There's plenty of trade talk around the team; its power play has been silent of late and the club has had trouble all year scoring goals. The bright spot for the Jets is the fact they have an eight-game home stand on tap. They also own one of the best home records in the conference. That gives them an opportunity to shoot for the Leafs in eighth spot.

Eleventh place:
New York Islanders
Record before Thursday:
24-24-8, 56 points
Games left: 26
Home games and record:
11 (12-13-5)
Road games and record:
15 (12-11-3)
Notable:
The Isles have won their last four road games and have allowed only three goals in the process. They have climbed to within eight points of a playoff berth, but remain a tricky team. The club has seen its playoff fortunes improve behind the play of goalie Evgeni Nabokov, but several teams are looking for goaltending help, and GM Garth Snow might be able to realize some solid prospects or a draft pick for the veteran goalie. If Nabokov stays the Isles could be a challenger, or a playoff spoiler.

Twelfth place:
Montreal Canadiens
Record before Thursday:
23-25-10, 56 points
Games left: 24
Home games and record:
10 (11-12-8)
Road games and record:
14 (12-13-2)
Notable:
The Habs have Carey Price, and that's arguably the only reason they are still entertaining a long-shot hope to make the post-season. An overtime loss to Boston on Wednesday didn't help. Montreal is a long shot to make the playoffs, but there's still time to mount a challenge. Interestingly, the Leafs' final game of the year is a road game in Montreal — that could be a sensational encounter. In the meantime, they have a very attractive trade asset in veteran blue-liner Hal Gill.

Nash not necessarily the answer

THE HOCKEY NEWS

ADAM PROTEAU
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

As soon as word leaked that the Columbus Blue Jackets were placing franchise star Rick Nash on the trade block, some Maple Leafs fans began dreaming in high definition of the local boy in a Blue and White uniform. But whether Toronto has enough to consummate that transaction is another question entirely.

Nobody's saying a Leafs-Jackets trade for Nash definitely won't happen. Toronto is one of five cities the big right-winger (who has a no-trade contract and thus is in control of his destiny) would accept a move to. And he is exactly the kind of first-line, long-term cornerstone player Burke believed he could acquire on the open market, which is why he chose not to rebuild the franchise through the more traditional draft lottery route. Although the 27-year-old carries a hefty salary cap hit of $7.8 million a season until the summer of 2018, his presence on the roster would boost the Buds' offensive fortunes drastically.

▶ Do the Leafs have the assets to acquire Rick Nash and remain competitive?

That is, unless Burke has to trade Columbus an important piece of Toronto's present-day puzzle in return for Nash. Let's say Jackets GM Scott Howson asks for Mikhail Grabovski, Jake Gardiner and a first-round draft pick? Would you give up two of Toronto's best players this season for Nash? Many would, but I'm not sure everyone in Leafs management feels the same.

And even if they did, that might not be enough for Nash's current team to accept a deal; Columbus needs help in all areas but particularly in goal. With all due respect to Leafs netminders James Reimer and Jonas Gustavsson, even if Burke offered one of them in the trade, they are nowhere near as highly regarded as L.A. Kings goalie Jonathan Bernier or Vancouver's Cory Schneider.

So not only are the Leafs putting themselves in danger of depleting their stock of young defencemen and forwards for one player, but they also don't have one of the specific pieces other teams will be able to offer. Perhaps Burke orchestrates other deals to acquire a goalie he could flip to Columbus for Nash, but that's easier said than done.

For long-suffering Leafs fans watching the team stumble through the first half of February, nothing would make for a better belated Valentine's Day present from their beloved Buds than a headline-making Nash acquisition. But if they're getting their hopes up when the reality of the situation shouldn't inspire optimism, they're setting themselves up for needless heartbreak.

LaBatte going back to Prairies

Brendon LaBatte is returning home.

The Saskatchewan native agreed to terms Wednesday with the Roughriders. LaBatte's deal will reportedly pay him around $200,000 annually.

The Riders also announced they have come to terms with free agent centre Dominic Picard, who spent last season with the Toronto Argonauts.

The six-foot-four, 304-pound LaBatte, from Weyburn, Sask., was an all-star and helped Winnipeg reach the Grey Cup in 2011. The 25-year-old will strengthen the offensive line at guard or centre.

A look at the undrafted beyond Lin

New York's sudden superstar not the first NBA player to seemingly come out of nowhere and have a big impact

Jeremy Lin will play in the Rising Stars Challenge after all.

The New York Knicks point guard was added to the NBA all-star weekend's roster of players for the Feb. 24 game on Thursday.

Lin's breakout came after the pool of players was selected, and the NBA was pressured to add him after he scored 136 points in his first five starts, most by an NBA player since the merger with the ABA in 1976-77.

But long before Jeremy Lin was Jeremy Lin and the world went gaga over a handful of great games, there were other undrafted NBAers with bonafides that Lin can only hope to match. Here's a look at the some of best of the bunch. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Avery Johnson
All the Little General did was become the leader of a San Antonio team that included David Robinson and Tim Duncan and take it to its first championship. Not bad for a guy no one picked.

RONALD MARTINEZ/GETTY IMAGES FILE

Ben Wallace
Yes, he had the wildest hair of the group, too, but he also might have been the best non-drafted defender and rebounder ever.

Detroit probably wouldn't win its 2004 title without him.

CHRIS MCGRATH/GETTY IMAGES FILE

Bruce Bowen
Some may have thought of him as a dirty player, but that wasn't the opinion in San Antonio, where he became a stalwart on championship teams. Spurs thought so much of him they'll retire his number this season.

JONATHAN DANIEL/ALLSPORT FILE

John Starks
That forgettable NBA Finals Game 7 aside — his 2-for-18 performance for the Knicks against Houston in '94 was abominable — Starks carved out an all-star career out of nowhere, really.

Udonis Haslem
As role players go, it doesn't get much better than Miami's Haslem. Sure, it's easy to play alongside James, Wade and Bosh, but Haslem is accomplished in his own right.

Seattle guns for NBA and NHL teams

Proposal submitted for arena funding Officials say financing only works with two franchises

Christopher Hansen is making a $290-million US proposal that could be the impetus for a new sports arena that could bring the NBA and NHL to Seattle.

All he needs is city and county approval equaling $200 million and two franchises to make it a reality.

Hansen, a hedge-fund manager based in San Francisco and a Seattle native, submitted a proposal to the city on Thursday that calls for $290 million in private investment toward the construction of a new arena that would cost between $450 and $500 million. Hansen and his investment group would be responsible for the purchase of an NBA franchise and finding a partner to bring an NHL franchise to Seattle as well.

"I am confident this proposal will be looked on favourably by both leagues and sincerely believe that together we can accomplish the goal of securing NBA and NHL franchises for our community."
CHRISTOPHER HANSEN

The proposal is the first significant step toward solving the arena problem that was at the root of the SuperSonics' move from Seattle to Oklahoma City in 2008.

The proposal will now go before a review board with King County executive Dow Constantine hoping it can be completed within a month.

According to a letter submitted by Hansen, remaining construction and development costs would be financed by the city and King County using taxes and revenues generated by the new facility and rent charged to teams playing in the arena. City officials say there will be no new public taxes needed for the building and that the city's portion of the investment will be capped at $200 million with additional costs paid for by the private investors.

FLIGHT PD138 It was either this or flying in and out of YTZ every week until I bump into you again. Decided to try this first! We met on flight PD138 last Feb 10th, I was seat 18A. You are a blonde flight attendant, kinda tall and you asked me if I wanted one or two immigration forms for me and my biz partner, smart ass! I'm kinda tall, but most of all bald! And I feel so stupid for not asking you out that day. If you still wanna pick on me: 514-465-4562. Pierre

Brani, I love you more than anything in the worl! Be my wife and let's be happy! TONI

Dear Chris, you made my life brighter. We used to chat in the stairs, we used to laugh together, drink wine together, lie on your bed and talk all night long, can't stop thinking about you :(I know you had a crush on this other girl (I told you I think she's a total loser...anyways...) and I'm super shy, so I didn't make any move or didn't express my feelings so far...but now I haven't heard from you since you're back from your lil trip. Whatever happens between us, I just want to tell you I love you. YOUR LONG TIME FAN

To my pet, I'm eagerly to see u at terminal and main at 11am i'll be there untill 1230.come to see me. MCDONALD

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, visit metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20
Someone whose views you disagree with profoundly will play a huge role in your life over the next few weeks. You need each other.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21
When the Sun changes signs on Sunday, you'll be back to your old self again. Between now and then, prepare for some fireworks.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21
The Sun is about to cross the career angle of your chart, which suggests you will be in the spotlight.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 According to the planets, you'll start something new over the next few weeks. Don't waste your resources.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23
You are on the verge of something big, but you don't need to force the situation. Let success come to you.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22
Cosmic activity in your opposite sign makes it appear as if you're losing control. Stop trying to hold on to what you no longer need.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
The Sun's imminent move into the well-being area of your chart makes it a good time to take stock of your chores and responsibilities.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22
You will get no end of opportunities between now and the end of the month to make your mark.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 What's missing in your life will become apparent over the next few days. Once it does, all you have to do is go out and get it.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20
If someone offers you something for nothing, they probably just like you and want to make you happy.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18
Wait until the Sun leaves your sign on the weekend before making a decision about a money matter.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 A new solar year begins on Sunday and it promises to be one in which your dreams start coming true.

[Δ]48-MONTHINSTALLMENTPLAN("Plan")offeredthroughDellFinancialServicesCanadaLimited("DFS"),aseparateentity,toqualifiedcustomersapprovedbyDFSinitssolediscretion.Minimumtransactionamountof$499isrequired.Nodownpaymentrequired.Monthlypayment set out in the ad is based on a Plan interest rate of 13.99% per year and an advance equal to the advertised price for a specific product configuration. Interest rates and monthly payments under the Plan will vary, depending on amount advanced and customer's creditworthiness. Representative example of a Plan: $999 advanced @ 13.99% per year; $27.29 monthly payment, total payable is $1309.92, total cost of borrowing is $310.92. Terms subject to error and change without notice. Please contact Dell for more details. NO INTEREST FOR 6 MONTHS ("Promo Interest Offer"), on approved credit (O.A.C.), subject to certain conditions. Offered through Dell Financial Services Canada Limited ("DFS"), a separate legal entity, to qualified customers approved by DFS in its sole discretion. Only available to customers outside Quebec who enter into a 48 month Installment Plan Agreement with DFS ("Plan Agreement") for qualifying advances from Dell from February 3, 2012 until February 23, 2012, 10 pm EST; not available on orders or financing entered into prior to this promotional period. A minimum transaction amount of $699 is required. Interest rates and monthly payments under the Plan Agreement will vary, depending on amount advanced and customer's creditworthiness. Representative example of a Plan Agreement: $999 advanced @ 13.99% per year; $27.29 monthly payment, total payable is $1309.92; total cost of borrowing is $310.92. Pursuant to the Promo Interest Offer, interest charges accruing on an amount advanced under the Plan Agreement will be forgiven for a period of 6 months from the date of the initial advance (the "Period") IF the following conditions are met: (i) during the Period, the borrower makes each minimum monthly payment under the Plan Agreement by their respective due dates; AND (ii) prior to the end of the Period, the borrower repays in full the balance owing under the Plan Agreement. Failure to meet either of these conditions will negate the Promo Interest Offer and all terms and conditions of the Plan Agreement will apply, including interest charges, at the Plan Agreement interest rate, accrued and calculated daily from the date of the initial advance. Call Dell for full details. PRICES/ORDERS: Offers available only in Canada for specified time period. E-value™ codes are locator codes and are not coupon or discount codes. To locate the system with the advertised price please mention or input the E-value™ code. Savings calculated on regular price offered by Dell. Total Value of a bundle equals aggregate of the regular price offered by Dell on individual components; bundle savings represents difference between advertised price of bundle and Total Value. Prices do not include applicable taxes, shipping, handling, environmental, restocking and other surcharges. Information in this material subject to error, cancellation, change and substitution at Dell's discretion at any time without notice. Dell reserves right to cancel orders arising from any errors and to limit quantities to 5 systems per customer. Offers not combinable with any other offers or discounts (i.e. limit 1 offer per eligible system). Certain products, configurations, colours and/or patterns may be limited in availability. ERRORS: Prices, offers, configurations and any other information in this material is subject to error, cancellation, change and substitution at Dell's discretion at any time without notice.
